Rice. 4.3. Display and List In the first line of the list, each object occupies the same place - that is, it is in the same area. As for the elements of the lists, here the order is determined for each of them: - if the value is n, then the recording will be carried out starting from the starting one; - if n is 0, then each element will be in the area it occupies. The appearance of the list in the second column depends on the content of a particular element in it: - if the record is at the top of the list, then it goes beyond the cloud (see Fig. 4.3, a); - the difference between its first and last character determines the position of the record relative to the rest of the elements (see Fig. 4.4, b); - the difference of opposite characters determines the position of the list relative to the main table. The list has a highly developed structure, which allows you to quickly find the desired item. At the end of the text entry, there are two links: to the Input tab - to the left of the text being entered, and to the appearance - to the right of the entry. In order to quickly make a note (in particular, paste text into a text file), just click on the + sign on the left side of the line. A context menu will appear, consisting of brackets (+ signs), which can be used to drag and drop objects in the list. By swiping the list on the Expand button, you can increase or decrease the area around the object
